

Ever have one of those days where everything is going well externally, but inside something just feels ... off?

flow

In your head you wonder, "I'm having fun, today's a good day."

"So why do I feel like this?"

Maybe your heart is racing like crazy

B-BMP
B-BMP

Maybe you can't seem to catch your breath.

HUF
HUF
HUF

Maybe your mind
can't stop spinning.

All, seemingly, for no reason.

But then, when you're asked if something's wrong,

you collapse a little bit.

That's when you realize what your body's been trying to say.

That maybe something is wrong.
That maybe you need to pay attention.

Because the body often knows before the mind is fully aware.